Michigan City Coastal Awareness Month 2010 with The W.G. Jackson Research Vessel

The W.G. Jackson research vessel helped enhance the larger effort of Michigan City celebrating its Coastal Awareness Weekend. The research vessel event took place June 8th and June 9th 2010. This vessel is a floating classroom and offers opportunities for participants to become acquainted with sampling instruments and how water quality data from Lake Michigan can be acquired. This classroom also included aquatic science instructors eager to provide hands-on experiences to the public, demonstrating the science behind water quality and the overall health of Lake Michigan.
